

LIGNUM NEGRE - Albet y Noya

Country of Origin: Spain
Region: Penedès

Wineyard: Albet y Noya
Grape: Merlot
Cabernet Sauvignon
Garnatxa Negra

Alcohol: 14,00 % vol

Sulfur: 80 mg / l

Acid: 3,7 g / l

Certificate: EU - BIO

Wine Type: rich in content & elegant

Skillfully composed cuvée of grapes from low yields, matured moderately in barriques, results in a rich, spicy, berry-fruity wine with a firm structure and warmth.

Fits grilled meat, roast & cheese.

Albet i Noya

Josep Albet

Can Vendrell s/n
ES-08738 St Pau Ordal

Can Vendrell, the winery of the brothers Antoni and Josep Albet i Noya, is located in the heart of the D.O. Penedès, a renowned wine-growing region between Barcelona and Tarragona on the Spanish Mediterranean coast. The estate has been managed by the family since 1903.

In 1980 the Noyas converted their vineyards to organic farming. This made them the first winemakers in Spain to commit to organic viticulture. In addition to the self-cultivated vineyards, they buy grapes from local winegrowers who have switched to organic farming. They pay the best prices in the Penedès and advise on cultivation so that they can guarantee the best quality for the grapes.

Josep and Antoni have been proving for years that organic viticulture has a positive effect on wine quality. Again and again they endeavor to compete with their products against conventionally produced wines and sparkling wines: They take part in a large number of comparative samples and score extremely well in these. The national and international trade press are enthusiastic. In addition to the young wines of their elegant, modern Classic series and the traditionally bottle-fermented and hand-shaken cavas (the Catalan answer to champagne), Antoni and Josep produce extraordinary barrique wines with a love of experimentation and a pronounced sense of aesthetics. The Lignum wines are very successful: Charming grape variety cuvées, which are gently matured in barriques according to the vintage, enrich every table in terms of both senses and looks.

